

THE L&C BUZZ

Hi, new student!

Lewis & Clark College is a place where you can be certain you will find a compassionate, caring community. You'll be surrounded by students who can unapologetically be their authentic selves—and you'll be supported as you do the same. Our institutional values call us to pursue a just and equitable society for all, and that means providing you a space to intentionally learn and grow in the way that feels right for you.

One way to make connections and build your skills is through events with the Office of Inclusion and Multicultural Engagement. IME is a campus resource and community space that supports students from all identities and backgrounds, and in particular those who identify as students of color, first-generation, and/or LGBTQ+. They focus on creating opportunities for belonging, leadership, advocacy, and celebration of diverse cultures.

Knowing that you're learning alongside—and from—open-minded, welcoming people makes a big difference. Our community members gain strength through each other, not only during their time at L&C but well after graduation. You don't have to worry about feeling alone—the L&C community will have your back every step of the way.

First-Generation Virtual Session

Register to join our First-Generation Virtual Session on Wednesday, July 16 from 2–3 p.m. PDT! This session is for our newest first-generation students, their families, and anyone who believes they would benefit from being connected to this community.

Who is considered a first-generation student?

A first-generation student is someone whose parents or guardians have not earned a bachelor's degree in the United States.

Click the button below to register. We look forward to seeing you there!
