

THE L&C BUZZ

Hi, new student!

The key to success in college is finding support in all aspects of your life. Academics are important, for sure, but fueling your interests outside of the classroom is important to your growth and finding a sense of belonging.

Now is a great time to think about what activities are of interest to you! We have over 100 student clubs and organizations to choose from, and there are opportunities to start your own club if you don't see what you're interested in. If you want a head start on finding your community, take this quick survey to share some of your passions and interests with us. You'll have the option to be connected with a campus office or student organization that's a great fit for you—even before you arrive on campus!

That said, there's no pressure to figure this all out right away. After the start of fall semester, there will be a Student Engagement Extravaganza \(SEE\) Fair on the academic quad. You'll be able to browse the tables of our active student clubs and organizations, and get a sense of what piques your interest. College is the perfect time to try something new and/or deepen your passion for something you already care about.

You don't have to worry about feeling alone—the L&C community will have your back every step of the way.

Coming Soon: L&C's New Mascot

We are in the process of choosing a new mascot—and you will get to campus just in time to vote! All students, staff, faculty, and alumni will participate in voting early this fall. Watch your email in the coming weeks for information about the finalists, and start thinking about which mascot you'll be voting for!

Checklist Reminders

- Complete the health insurance waiver form (if applicable).
- Complete the Common Reading.

Advice From a Current Student

“Be open to new experiences. A large part of the liberal arts experience is the freedom to change. I had no clue what I wanted to do with my life as a first-year student. I still don’t, but I’m getting there.”
