INSIDE-OUT PRISON EXCHANGE CLASS

Writing Justice in the Americas

PROFESSOR MAGALÍ RABASA

This course, conducted in Spanish, explores various forms individuals and groups have used to write about and for justice in the Americas from the 1960s to the present. Using the Latin American literary genre of testimonio as a starting point, we will examine classic testimonios and contemporary examples of different forms of expression activated to convey personal and collective narratives about systems, structures, and movements for justice. Students will also produce their own testimonial narratives about their personal experiences with the concept of justice.

This course is part of the Inside-Out Prison Exchange Program. The class will include 15 incarcerated students and 15 L&C students, and will be held at Columbia River Correctional Institution, a 30-minute drive from campus. Students can drive, carpool, or take public transportation. Factor in travel time when considering whether this class will work with your schedule.

REQUIREMENTS

Sophomore standing + Advanced level reading, writing, and speaking in Spanish

ELECTIVE CREDIT for Latin American & Latino Studies, Ethnic Studies, Gender Studies, and Hispanic Studies.
GEN ED CREDIT for Creative Arts, Culture, Power, Identity, and Global Perspectives.
