

Hi, new student!

Get excited: it's time to start thinking about your fall course schedule! While you won't be able to register for your courses until later this summer (July 29 and 31, to be exact), you can start prepping now.

While this isn't your first time registering for college courses, it is your first time doing so at Lewis & Clark. The College Advising Center has created a suite of webpages to help you navigate through our system, and created a robust FAQ to help answer any questions you may have. Your college advisor will send you an introductory email this week, and soon you'll also be assigned a faculty advisor to assist you with course planning for fall. Don't hesitate to connect with your advisors if you have any class schedule or registration questions.

Webinar

This week, join the Office of Accessibility on Tuesday, June 2 from 1–2 p.m. PDT, to learn about academic accommodations to support your coursework and residential accommodations for your on-campus living experience. There will be time for questions at the end and a recording of the webinar will be made available on our website for those unable to attend.

Checklist Reminders

- Complete the Academic Integrity Tutorial
- Complete the World Languages Placement Exam (if applicable)
- Complete the ALEKS Exam (if applicable)
- Complete the Music Theory Placement Exam (if applicable)

Advice From a Current Student

“Being open to new experiences, even those that seem unfamiliar, can lead to unexpected and rewarding opportunities. Sometimes the most valuable lessons come from embracing what initially seems outside of your comfort zone.”
